Main characteristics/features

Sakhon Nakhon natural indigo dyed fabric (Pa Kram Thammachat Sakon Nakhon) is cotton coloured with dye from indigo plants. This traditional fabric is light to dark blue and it retains its colour even after several washes. It has a vibrant look and a unique scent. In addition, it is airy and comfortable and can be worn in warm and humid climates.

Geographical area

Sakon Nakhon province located in north-eastern Thailand.

Production/processing

Link between product and territory

Sakon Nakhon province is located in the highlands. It has a relatively high annual rainfall and is quite warm and humid in the summer. This is the reason why the indigo plants grown in the area are of such a unique quality. These factors, together with the skill and expertise of the local people who produce it, all contribute to making this high-quality unique fabric so well-renowned.
